Rubrica

¡ Hi students, I hope you and your family are very well!

In this opportunity we are going to remember the Perect Present tense. To form this verbal tense we need to remember that it is formed with the past participle of the principal verb and the TO HAVE verb in present tense. (en esta oportunidad vamos a recordar el tiempo presente perfecto. Para formar este tiempo verbal necesitamos recordar que se forma con el pasado participio del verbo principal y el verbo TO HAVE en tiempo presente)

TO HAVE (present tense)

It has (este ha, esta ha, esto ha)

I have (yo he)

We have (nosotros hemos)

You have (tu has, ó usted ha)

You have (ustedes han)

He has él ha)

They have(ellos ó ellas han)

She has (ella ha)

El pasado participio de los verbos regulares se forma agregando D ó ED a los verbos, y el pasado participio de los verbos regulares es el que encontramos en la tercera columna de la lista del diccionario, si no los hemos aprendido todavía.

EXAMPLES:

1- They have trainned on Saturday and Friday.

Ellos ó ellas han entrenado el sábado y domingo.

2- She has swum during two hours.

Ella ha nadado durante dos horas.

3-We have practiced sports during six years at school and at the court of the path.

Nosotros hemos practicado deportes durante seis años en el colegio y en la cancha de la vereda.

4- Our friends have come to visit at home.

Nuestros amigos han venido a visitarnos a la casa.

5-The champions have celebrated their triumph in the competition of the municipality.

Los campeones han celebrado su triunfo en la competencia del municipio.

Now you are going to write and translate into Spanish the following text which has simple present, continuous and perfect tenses and you are going to write in the chart sentences in each verbal time. (ahora van a escribir y traducir a español el siguiente texto el cual tiene presente simple, continuo y perfecto y van a escribir en los cuadros las oraciones que encuentren en cada tiempo verbal)

Adopt an endangered animal

All over the world, humans have caused four main kinds of danger to animals. We have the plant life of huge areas, leaving animals with nowhere to live, we have been contaminating the world with soot, chemicals and wastes, we have moved predators into countries where the local animals have not defense against them, and we have been hunting animals for food, for their skins or for sport. So many wild animals can no longer survive in their native habitats and live only in zoos. Some are already extinct. Today many more are in serious danger because they only survive in very small numbers and many soon become extinct. But there are some, which have survived. For instance the spectacled bear, the only bear found in South America, it lives on the slopes of the Andes in Venezuela, Bolivia, Ecuador, Colombia and Perú. It can live in many habitats, but prefers the humid environment of rainforest. It's a good climber, known to climb up palm trees to thirty meters high. In some areas the spectacle bear is hunted for food, and also for its skin.

Youth is protecting the environment and some endangered species. Polar bears are the largest carnivores that are living on land. Polar bears are excellent swimmers and can stay under water for two or more minutes. This White large bears are living in the arctic circle where is very cold, with icebergs in a freezing cold sea. Polar bears hunt and catch seals and other animals as foxes and birds for food. They also eat fish and other animals and plants that live in the sea.

People have used to hunt and trap them for their fur. Now polar bears are protected and they can only be hunted by esquimos using traditional ways.
